State of Kansas

Board of Education

Notice of Hearing on Proposed Administrative Regulations

The State Board of Education will conduct a public hearing at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, February 8, in the Board Room of the State Education Building, 120 S.E. 10th Ave., Topeka, to consider proposed new special education regulations numbered K.A.R. 91-40-1 through 91-40-53, which are to replace existing special education regulations found at 91-12-22 through 91-12-74. These existing regulations are proposed for revocation.

These proposed regulations are required by federal regulations implementing the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). They also address state special education laws that exceed federal mandates, such as services for gifted children and children enrolled in private schools.

These regulations do not impose any requirement that is not mandated by state or federal law. The following is a summary of the substance of each regulation and its anticipated economic impact.

K.A.R. 91-40-1. This regulation provides definitions of terms to coincide with federal regulatory definitions or state statute. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-2. This regulation implements the requirement that all children with disabilities aged 3 through 21 have available to them a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE). It adds language to clarify that the responsibility to provide FAPE begins no later than a child's third birthday and that an IEP or IFSP must be in effect by that date. It also includes language to clarify that a child may be eligible for special education and related services, even though the child is progressing from grade to grade.

This regulation imposes no new obligation on school districts. Thus, this regulation should not impose any additional economic burden on school districts. However, the statutory obligation to provide FAPE to exceptional children has a very substantial economic impact. In the 1999-2000 school year, the estimated costs of providing FAPE will be $454,471,812, with the state paying approximately $228,758,744 in categorical aid. Federal aid will be about $38,555,000. For the 2000-2001 school year, the state board estimates the costs of providing FAPE will be $483,300,437. Federal aid is expected to be approximately $40,500,000. Over the last five school years, beginning with the 1994-95 school year, special education costs have increased by the following yearly percentages: 6.5%; 6.1%; 5.2%; 7.1%; and 8.6%. For the next school year, 2000-2001, the department estimates a 6.3% increase.

K.A.R. 91-40-3. This regulation requires that children with disabilities have available to them the same variety of educational programs and services that are available to nondisabled children, including art, music, consumer education, and vocational education. It also requires that an assistive technology device or extended school year services be provided, if necessary, for a child to receive an appropriate education. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals. No economic impact is anticipated for school districts under this regulation's requirement to make existing services and programs available to all students. The requirement for assistive technology devices will have an economic impact on school districts. The cost of such items range from as little as $1 to as much as $15,000. The vast majority of assistive technology devices cost less than $1,000. In addition, many devices can be borrowed from the Kansas Interagency Equipment Loan System.

K.A.R. 91-40-4. This regulation implements the statutory requirement that special education be provided to exceptional children housed and maintained at any facility operated by the State Board of Education, including the State School for the Blind and the State School for the Deaf, or by the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, private businesses or individuals. Information provided to the state board shows that general fund expenditures for KSSB for the past three years are $3,881,473 (FY 98), $4,155,823 (FY 99) and about $4,268,900 (FY 2000). The requested appropriation for FY 2001 is $4,414,239. General fund expenditures for KSSD for the past three years are $6,713,410 (FY 98), $7,042,710 (FY 99) and about $7,135,887 (FY 2000). The recommended appropriation for FY 2001 is $6,867,197. SRS reports the actual expenditures for FY 99 to provide special education services to students in its facilities was $3,037,983.

K.A.R. 91-40-5. Consistent with state and federal statutory provisions, this regulation requires that special education be provided to each child with a disability detained or incarcerated in a local juvenile or adult detention facility, and in a state adult correctional facility, unless the child is both 18 years of age and was not identified as a child with a disability before incarceration in the state correctional facility. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. No additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts, since this regulation imposes no new requirement. In FY 99, state expenditures to serve detained youths were $3,320,329. For FY 2000, estimated expenditures will be $4,329,781. The Department of Corrections' expenditures for special education services for incarcerated persons were (FY 98) $609,000; (FY 99) $718,680; and (FY 2000 estimated) $752,000.

K.A.R. 91-40-6. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-7. This regulation continues the requirement that each school board adopt and implement policies and procedures to identify, locate and evaluate children with exceptionalities residing in its jurisdiction. This is known as "child find." In addition, the regulation continues the requirement that school districts generally not evaluate a child for special education until the school district has tried general education interventions to help the child. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-8. This regulation continues the requirement that an appropriate evaluation be conducted of any child being considered for special education to determine if the child is an exceptional child and what the educational needs of the child are. In addition, it continues the requirement that a re-evaluation of each exceptional child be done at least every three years. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-9. This regulation continues the requirement that any tests or other assessment instruments or methods used to evaluate or re-evaluate an exceptional child are not racially or culturally discriminatory, are provided in the child's native language or other mode of communication, are administered by trained personnel, and have been validated. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-10. This regulation concerns eligibility determinations and requires that a written evaluation report be completed to document whether a child is an exceptional child. It specifies what information must be considered in making this determination and that a copy of the evaluation report must be provided to the child's parent. It also specifies when continued eligibility must be determined. The requirement that parents be given an evaluation report for their child's evaluation is new. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. School districts will incur costs in completing evaluation reports. The estimated cost per report is $10.

K.A.R. 91-40-11. This regulation concerns re-evaluations. It requires that a re-evaluation be done at least once every three years and that the results of any re-evaluation be considered by the child's IEP team. No economic im-impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-12. This regulation concerns the right of parents to obtain an independent education evaluation (IEE). It requires that parents of an exceptional child be provided, on request, information about obtaining such an evaluation. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-13 to 91-40-15. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-16. This regulation concerns the development, review and revision of an individualized education program (IEP) for each exceptional child. It requires that an IEP be in effect before special education or related services are provided, that the IEP be accessible to each provider responsible for its implementation, and that each IEP be reviewed at least annually. This regulation continues and clarifies existing requirements. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-17. This regulation concerns participation at IEP meetings by the following persons: the parents; the exceptional child; individuals whom the parents or district believe to have knowledge or expertise about the child; persons responsible for transition services; and a regular education teacher of the child. Since July 1, 1998, federal law has required that a regular education teacher be a member of each IEP team. This requirement is repeated in the state law. It will have no economic impact on the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, or on private businesses or individuals. This cost to school district of this requirement is approximately $60 for each IEP meeting.

K.A.R. 91-40-18. This regulation concerns IEP development and content. It references statutory requirements and requires that the IEP include certain services or accommodations if needed by the child. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Recording the information required by this regulation should be a routine part of developing an IEP. Thus, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-19. This regulation repeats a federal regulation that specifies that special education or related services are to be provided to each child in accordance with the child's IEP; however, no agency, teacher or related services provider shall be held liable if the child does not achieve the growth projected in the IEP. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. However, this regulation provides protection from legal liability to school districts and special educators who exercise good faith in implementing a child's

IEP. It should assist in avoiding or constraining litigation costs or damages awards against school districts and educators.

K.A.R. 91-40-20. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-21. This regulation concerns educational placement and continues the existing requirement that each exceptional child be educated in the least restrictive environment (LRE). No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. The economic impact of this requirement on school districts is substantial. This statutory requirement compels school districts to employ paraprofessionals to assist students and to provide other supplemental aids and services. It necessitates separate classrooms and residential placements, when needed by children with disabilities. Although a precise amount is difficult to calculate, the department estimates that this statutory requirement accounts for approximately 75 percent of the costs of paraprofessional support. Based upon last year's para expenditures, this amount would be $45,181,350.

K.A.R. 91-40-22. This regulation concerns the placement of a child with a disability in a private school or facility by the child's school district. When this occurs, the child remains the responsibility of the local school district. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-23. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-24. This regulation concerns the appointment of an educational advocate if a child's parents are unknown or are unavailable. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-25. This regulation concerns the right of the parents of an exceptional child to inspect the child's educational records, and to receive notice of any meeting concerning their child. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-26. This regulation requires that any notice sent to the parents of an exceptional child be written in language that is understood by the general public, provided in the native language of the parent, or in the mode of communication (i.e., Braille) used by the parent. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Translating notices into various languages or to a mode of communication such as Braille will have a fiscal impact on school districts. A typical notice to parents is usually only one page. However, transcription or Braille time should not exceed one hour. School districts advised the KSDE that transcribers charge about $20 per hour, and the State School for the Blind advises it would cost about $20 to provide a notice in Braille.

K.A.R. 91-40-27. This regulation specifies when written parental consent must be obtained before taking special education action in regard to an exceptional child. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. A school district will incur expenses only if parental consent is denied. Then, mediation or a due process hearing may be required. Mediation costs $500, and due process hearings cost between $500 and $10,000.

K.A.R. 91-40-28. This regulation offers parents and school districts the option to request mediation or to initiate a due process hearing if a disagreement arises between parents and a school district concerning the identification, evaluation, or placement of an exceptional child, or the services provided to the child. Federal law requires that the costs of mediation be paid by the state. Due process hearing costs are paid by school districts. The mediation costs to the state depend on the number of requests for mediation. During the 97-98 school year, KSBE received 16 requests. In 98-99, it received 22 requests. The costs were $8,000 and $11,000, respectively. For school districts, a due process hearing can cost anywhere from $500 to $10,000. Statewide, there were 9 due process hearings in 1997-98, and there were 15 in 1998-99. It is anticipated that the use of mediation will increase while the use of the more costly due process hearings will decrease. This will result in reduced costs for school districts. If mediation is used rather than due process hearings, legal fees for lawyers will decrease and expenses for parents also will decrease.

K.A.R. 91-40-29. This regulation establishes the qualifications for special education mediators and due process hearing officers. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses. Individuals who take the training are charged a registration fee of $50 for materials and 1/2 days of instruction. Some incur lodging, subsistence and travel expense.

K.A.R. 91-40-30. This regulation concerns expedited due process hearings. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-31. This regulation concerns a child's educational placement during the pendency of due process proceedings. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-32. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-33. This regulation provides definitions of terms used in the following five regulations that concern the discipline of children with disabilities. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-34. This regulation authorizes school personnel to impose a short-term suspension on a child with a disability for violation of a school rule, and for school personnel or a due process hearing officer to order a change in placement as authorized by law. Discipline of gifted children also is addressed. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-35. This regulation specifies the special education and related services that are required to be provided to a child with a disability who has been suspended from school or who has been placed in an interim alternative educational setting. No services are required until a child is suspended for more than 10 school days in a school year. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. School districts will incur expenses, primarily salary expenses, to provide services to a student who is suspended from school. The amount will depend on how much time a staff member has to spend in providing services to the suspended student and the length of the student's suspension from school.

K.A.R. 91-40-36. This regulation clarifies that school district personnel determine the special education and related services for a child with a disability who is suspended from school for more than 10 cumulative school days. The IEP team, however, determines what services will be provided for a child who is suspended from school for more than 10 consecutive school days, or who is expelled, or who is placed in an interim alternative educational setting for behavior involving drug or weapon possession at school. Finally, if a child is placed in an alternative setting due to dangerous behavior, school personnel propose services and the hearing officer determines whether those services are appropriate. School districts will incur expenses, primarily salary expenses, to provide services to a student who is suspended from school. The amount will depend on how much time a staff member has to spend in providing services to the suspended student and the length of the student's suspension from school. The primary expense for school districts will be salary expenses for staff who must meet to determine the services to be provided to the student while suspended or placed in an alternative setting. Assuming three staff persons take a half hour to make the determination, an estimated cost would be $45.

K.A.R. 91-40-37. This regulation clarifies the statutory requirements concerning functional behavioral assessments and behavioral intervention plans when making a change in placement for disciplinary reasons. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Additional costs will be incurred by school districts to conduct functional behavioral assessments. These assessments are performed primarily by the school psychologist and take any where from 3 to 12 hours to complete. Assuming salary expense at $30 per hour, an assessment could cost from $90 to $360.

K.A.R. 91-40-38. This regulation clarifies the statutory requirements concerning manifestation determination reviews when a change in placement for disciplinary reasons is proposed. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-39. This regulation clarifies that a school district will not be held to have overlooked a child as a child with a disability if the child was previously evaluated and found to be ineligible, or an evaluation was considered but determined to be unwarranted. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. However, this regulation will prevent school districts from incurring the expense of unnecessary evaluations since it clarifies that not all children subject to discipline can avail themselves of procedures and rights granted by the federal special education law.

K.A.R. 91-40-40. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-41. This regulation states the findings that must be made before a school district can be held liable to reimburse parents for the costs of enrolling their child in a private school. It also specifies the grounds upon which tuition reimbursement can be denied or reduced. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. This regulation limits the exposure of school districts to claims for private school tuition reimbursement by parents of children with disabilities. It helps to eliminate or reduce litigation costs.

K.A.R. 91-40-42. This regulation requires public school districts to consult with representatives of parentally-placed private school students on: 1) how to conduct child find; 2) how to conduct a child count of private school children with disabilities; and 3) how to determine which private school children will receive services. It also requires school districts to conduct child find activities in private schools. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. The economic impact of the child find activities is very difficult to estimate, since many districts have, for many years, conducted such activities in private schools. (Vision and hearing screening are examples of such activities.) Other districts do not have private schools. Since this is a once-a-year requirement, the state board's best guess about the impact is from $50 in a small district with a small private school to $5,000 for a large district with several private schools.

K.A.R. 91-40-43. This regulation concerns the services that must be provided to private school children. It addresses the different requirements under state and federal law. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-44. This regulation prescribes the formulas that local school districts must use to allocate federal funds for expenditure in providing special education and related services to private school children with disabilities. The formulas are based on federal requirements. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Consistent with federal requirements, this regulation forces school districts to allocate, for services to private school children, a proportionate share of the federal aid they receive for special education.

K.A.R. 91-40-45. This regulation clarifies when a services plan or an IEP is to be developed for a child with a disability in a private school. It addresses the different requirements under state and federal law. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-46. This regulation clarifies the rights of parents of private school exceptional children regarding mediation or due process hearings. It addresses differences in the state and federal laws. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-47. This regulation clarifies that public school districts must provide transportation for exceptional children from the private school or their home to the location of the special education and related services provided to them. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-48. This regulation specifies allowable uses of public funds and equipment in providing special education and related services to exceptional children enrolled in private schools. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-49. Reserved.

K.A.R. 91-40-50. This regulation concerns parents' access to student records and confidentiality of student records. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, other governmental entities, private businesses or individuals. Also, since this regulation does not impose any new requirement upon school districts, no additional economic impact is anticipated for school districts.

K.A.R. 91-40-51. This regulation specifies the procedures for filing a complaint with the State Department of Education. It continues provisions that have been in effect for several years. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-52. This regulation specifies the conditions for school districts to be eligible for state funding and lists the related services for which districts will receive state funding. This is a continuation of prior regulatory provisions. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, school districts, other governmental entities, or for private businesses or individuals.

K.A.R. 91-40-53. This regulation is proposed to comply with the federal requirement that the state have in effect procedures to resolve disputes that arise under interagency agreements. This regulation offers two options for resolution of disputes arising under interagency agreements—mediation and administrative hearings. No economic impact is anticipated for the State Board of Education, private businesses or individuals. Disputes involving interagency agreements are very rare, but if mediation or an administrative hearing is required, a school district could incur expenses ranging from $500 to $5,000.

Existing special education regulations in K.A.R. 91-12-22 through 91-12-74 are to be revoked. These regulations do not reflect new requirements enacted by the Legislature in 1999 (see L. 1999, ch. 116, secs. 1 to 41). In addition, revocation of K.A.R. 91-12-51 through 91-12-58 complies with the recommendation of the 1998 Legislative Budget Committee that the state board revoke its regulations governing staffing ratios applicable to the provision of special education services. The revocation of these outdated regulations will have no economic impact on school districts, other governmental agencies, or members of the general public, except that elimination of the staffing ratios will result in school districts not having to hire additional staff to comply with the staffing ratio limitations. For the 98-99 school year, the state aid for each special teacher was $19,815. This year, the amount is estimated to be $20,000.

A copy of each of the proposed regulations and complete economic impact statements may be obtained by contacting the secretary of the State Board of Education, State Education Building, 120 S.E. 10th Ave., Topeka, 66612, prior to the date of the hearing.

All interested persons will be given a reasonable opportunity at the hearing to present their views or arguments, either orally or in writing, in regard to the proposed regulations. In addition, the period of public notice hereby provided constitutes a public comment period for the purpose of receiving written public comments on the proposed regulations. Such written comments may be submitted to the secretary of the State Board of Education at the above address. The hearing shall be conducted in compliance with the public hearing procedures of the State Board of Education.

Any individual with a disability may request accommodation in order to participate in the public hearing and may request the proposed regulations and economic impact statements in an accessible format. Requests for accommodation should be made at least five working days in advance of the hearing by contacting Lanny Gaston at (785) 296-3906 or (785) 296-8172 (TDD).
